THE AUDITORIUM.

Following up the good impression left by last week's excellent bill, the management have booked in a show for the week of May 2d that promises to eclipse all former efforts. For a headliner Johnny Small and his Small sistem, coming direct from Hammerstein's Victoria. New York city, are the feature. This clever trio present an up to the minute singing and dancing act that is as refreshing and refined a turn as one would wish to see. An act that is the only one in its line is the equilibristic turn of Paul Stephens. Can you imagine a man taking an absolutely unsupported wooden pole and climbing to the top of it, and then walking up and down a flight of stairs while balanced on it. This is but one of the difficult feats in this act. Williams and Dale are two clever musicians as well as being irresistibly funny comedians, and the combination goes to make up an act that should appeal to all. Haney and Baylis, a pair of refined duetists, are the fourth act, and they certainly can sing. Come and hear them. The motion pictures are rapidly becoming features, and the appropriate music and sound effects that accompany them give them an additional setting.

BREED THEATER.

The Ranchmen's Wooing, Feature Picture.

It is seldom that there is a picture made with the vim and snap in it that there is in the sparkling little western story which forms the basis of the plot for the successful picture at the Breed theater this week, entitled The Ranchmen's Wooling. This is an amusing story of an old ranchman possessing four attractive daughters and each has a suitor, who dares not propose. The old father has his own love affairs with a widow in the vicinity, but she will not accept him as long as he has these unmarried daughters, and tells the father to kick the suitors off the premises; then they will all plan to elope leaving him free to marry. This he does, the plan working to perfection, the ludicrous situations creating an uproar of isughter through the entitled The Kid is secured especially for the children at the matinee today, and the findling sory of the Treasure Hunters will appeal to both old and young, as will the powerful story of The Suit Case Mystery.

Mr. Irving Joy, the new tenor at the Breed theater, is delighting the many patrons with his fine voice and splendid of the concent song, You're the Ideal of My Dreams.

Swift to my use in my trenches, where my well-planned ground work grow.

I tumbled his queins and his ashlers, and sut and reset them anew.

Lime I milled out of the marbles; burned it, slacked it and spread.

Taking and leaving at pleasure the gifts of the humble dead.

Yet I despised not nor gloried, yet, as we wrenched them spart.

I read in the raxed foundations the heart of that builder's heart.

As he had risen and pleaded, so did I understand.

The form of the dream he had followed in the face of the thing he had pleaned.

When I was a king and a musen—in the open noon of my mids. They sent me a Word from the Dark-ness—they whispered and put me noss—they whispered and put me aside, "The end is forbidden;" they said: "Thy use is shiftied, And thy palace shall stand as that other's—the spoil of a king who shall build."

I called my men from my trenches, my gineries, my wherea and my shears.

All I bes wrought I abandoned to the faith of the faithless years.

Only I cut on the timber, only I carved on the stone:

"After me cometh a builder. Tell him I, teo, have known."
